

2,000 Soldiers Occupy Riot Torn San Francisco Water Front

TWO KILLED, 50 INJURED IN OUTBREAK

Two thousand soldiers occupied riot torn San Francisco water front today. Their commander intimated they would shoot down rioters without hesitation.

Authorities obviously anticipated renewal of yesterday's frenzied fighting in which two were killed and more than 50 injured.

The entire waterfront was patrolled by troops clad in steel helmets, carrying full field and riot equipment, and aimed with bayoneted rifles.

For the minute the long line of docks where since May, striking longshoremen and maritime workers have engaged in sporadic battles with police, were quiet. The falling of night and the arrival of soldiers cleared the last of the strikers and sympathizers who withstood wave after wave of tear and nauseating gas to battle police hour after hour.

Adjutant General Seth Howard warned the public to stay away today.

"These troops are armed with tear gas and not with clubs," he said. "After one warning has been issued, the troops will act immediately."

Before the 153rd Infantry and the 250th Coast Artillery left their army, they received these instructions from Lieut.-Col. David P. Hardy:

"If it is a question of you or the rioters, get them first. If you are attacked, clip them, then bayonet them, then use bullets."

Anticipate Trouble

The military either anticipated a strenuous battle or were taking every possible precaution. A battalion of the 143rd Field Artillery and the 10th Signal Company were being mobilized. Other detachments of the 143rd and the 75th Infantry were ordered to hold themselves in readiness.

Remnants of the army of 3,000 strikers that fought so bitterly yesterday, were found in alleys and side streets leading to the waterfront and the warehouse district around Beacon Hill. They were sullen and gave no indication they planned to give the troops trouble.

"We cannot stand up to police guns and national guard bayonets," Harry Bridges, "left wing" strike leader, said.

San Francisco residents seemed to greet the troops joyfully and the cause of the strikers was further compromised by a refusal of San Francisco union labor generally to support them.

Other unions charged the maritime workers were led by "Communists and Radicals—men who are not workers but agitators."

At one time yesterday 10,000 rioters were fighting along the waterfront and as many as five distinct riots were going on at one time. The fighting lasted all day, with a brief respite at noon when police and strikers refreshed themselves with sandwiches and coffee.

Streets Littered

Streets in the strike torn area of approximately one square mile were littered with broken clubs, bricks, broken glass. The sickening odor of tear gas still lingered.

Growing more bloody as the day progressed, the worst fighting occurred near a ferry slip as police were attempting to protect commuters during the evening rush hour.

For one hour police and 2,000 strikers battled with fists, clubs, and finally with riot guns, revolvers, tear gas, and the various nauseating gas only recently introduced in police work.

The two dead both died of police bullets. At least two had injuries so critical it was feared they might die. Thirteen rioters were shot, 17 more were injured or gassed so seriously they were in hospitals. Some 30 others received treatment for lacerations caused by police clubs. Hundreds were made ill by gas.

All efforts to settle the strike including the efforts of a labor board appointed by President Roosevelt under drastic powers granted by congress, have failed.

The strike originally was called by the International Longshoremen's Union to obtain recognition and union control of hiring halls. Later other maritime unions struck in sympathy. The strike, however, got out of control of the Longshoremen's union and Joseph P. Ryan, International President, gave up his efforts to bring settlement 10 days ago.

The strike affects all the Pacific coast and the ports of Seattle and Portland are effectively tied up. The port of Los Angeles has remained open.

Study Reveals City Of Elyria Is Large Corporation With Almost 200 On Payroll

The study of the finances of the City of Elyria has revealed many things, not the least of which is the fact that the City is a large Corporation employing almost 200 persons.

A checkup with the City Auditor reveals the fact that the last payroll totalled 198 persons distributed in every department of the City's operations.

This payroll included a number of persons on the "street labor account" which is paid out of the auto and gasoline tax fund.

A comparison of the salaries and wages in effect in the years 1932 and 1933 gives an interesting basis of comparison particularly in view of the fact that the Chamber of Commerce has recommended a reduction of at least 25 percent in salaries and wages as well as the elimination of several positions entirely.

The comparative payroll for the two years referred to follows:

The mighty events of the world oftentimes turn on very little hinges, the battle lost or won because the general's liver was functioning ill or well has lost or saved a kingdom; and a single mortal's death owing to a wasp's sting, or a stray bullet, or a microbe waited here or there, has determined the course of human affairs through the ages.
