DECLARE MARTIAL LAW AFTER RIOTS IN SAN FRANCISCO

2000 Soldiers on City's Water Front as Authorities Expect Renewal of Fighting Causing Two Deaths.

COMMANDER WARNS HIS TROOPS HAVE FIREARMS

Labor Union Refuses to Support Striking Longshoremen Said to Be Led by "Agitators" Not Workers.

San Francisco, July 6—Two thousand soldiers established military law along riot torn San Francisco waterfront today. Their commander intimated they would shoot down rioters without hesitation.

Authorities obviously anticipated renewal of yesterday's frenzied fighting in which two were killed and more than 50 injured.

Adjutant General Seth Howard warned the public to stay away. "These troops are armed with firearms and not with clubs," he said. "After one warning has been issued, the troops will act immediately."

The military either anticipated a strenuous battle or were taking every possible precaution. A battalion of the 143rd field artillery and the 40th signal company were being mobilized.

Remnants of the army of 3,000 strikers that fought so bitterly yesterday, were found in alleys and side streets leading to the waterfront and the warehouse district around Beason Hill.

"We cannot stand up to police guns and national guard bayonets," Harry Bridges, "Left Wing" strike leader, said.

San Francisco residents seemed to greet the troops joyfully and the cause of the strikers was further compromised by a refusal of San Francisco union labor generally to support them.

Other unions charged the maritime workers were led by "communists and radicals—men who are not workers but agitators."

At one time yesterday 10,000 rioters were fighting along the waterfront and as many as five distinct riots were going on at one time. The fighting lasted all day, with a brief respite at noon when police and strikers refreshed themselves with sandwiches and coffee.

CRISIS RESULTS IN APPOINTMENT

Nazi Government Names Dictator of Trade and Industrial Activities.

(Copyright 1934 by United Press) Berlin, July 6—A national financial and economic crisis, all but ignored in the bloody events of the last week, impelled the government today to name Minister of Economics, Kurt Schmitt, dictator of trade and industrial activities.

As the result of a practical strangling of imports, factories are increasingly finding themselves short of raw materials. This causes the dismissal of workers. Social repercussions to these conditions are great and doubtless will be greater.

Harvests probably will be considerably below normal because of the spring drought—though not disastrously so as early reports indicated.

Schmitt's dictatorship was regarded as recognition by the government, planning the second phase of its third Reich, that the country's immediate future depends on economic rather than political measures.
